University of Minho

University of Minho

The University of Minho (UMinho) is a vibrant young Portuguese university. Founded in 1973, its academic activity started in 1974. There are three campi - Gualtar Campus, Azurém Campus and Couros Campus- located in two charming historical cities - Braga and Guimarães.

As recognition of its quality, UMinho has risen, year after year, among the top universities in the world in the Times Higher Education 150 Under 50 (THE). The University of Minho is also a front-runner in the renowned CWTS Leiden Ranking that measures quality and impact of scientific production worldwide.

UMinho is a successful and inclusive university, with the open doors to international students, for those seeking a high-quality institution in higher education, deeply embedded in top research, and with a warm interpersonal environment.

The University of Minho partners with many outstanding universities all over the world,

Research Centres

CICP - Research Centre in Political Science

The Research Centre in Political Science's mission and final objective has remained unchanged since its creation in 2015: to achieve the highest quality of research in Political Science in Portugal.

The Research Centre in Political Science organises itself into four distinct research groups: (i) Administrative Sciences and Public Policies; (ii) Governance and Democracy; (iii) States, International Organisations and Contemporary International Relations Challenges; (iv) Society, Europe and Global Dynamics. It currently ranks Excellent in the field of Political Science by the Foundation for Science and Technology (FCT).

Director: Professor Miguel Rodrigues

NIPE - Centre for Research in Economics and Management

Created in 1999, the Centre for Research in Economics and Management's main objective is to foster scientific progress in Economics and Management, translated in publications in leading international journals.

The Centre for Research in Economics and Management is organised into five research areas: (i) Political Economy and Macroeconomics; (ii) Industrial, Regional and Environmental Economics; (iii) Labour Economics and Quantitative Methods; (iv) Finance and (v) Management. NIPE ranks second among the Portuguese Research Centres in Economics, with a grade of Very Good in the last evaluation performed by the Portuguese Foundation for Science and Technology.

Director: Professor Linda Gonçalves Veiga

How to arrive to...

Braga is famous for its historical buildings, monuments, gardens and fountains. It is a beautiful city in the heart of the green Minho region where religious devotion in the form of many churches and other symbols of faith lies juxtaposed with the typical bustle of a modern city with restaurants, bars and a renowned nightlife, owing in some part to the University of Minho.

Due to its excellent geographical location, Braga is easily accessible by car, train, taxi or bus.

The city is the crossroads of 5 Highways: North (A3), South (A3 and A1 - Porto - Lisbon - Porto), East (A11 and A7) and West (A28).

The rail transport system connects Braga to various parts of the country through the CP Services (Alfa Pendular, Intercidades and Porto Urban Trains).

Regarding the road transport facilities, the Braga Central Bus Station welcomes several companies that ensure the connection amongst several regional, national and international destinations.

The Francisco Sá Carneiro Airport is the main hub in the Northwest Region of the Iberian Peninsula where do land the most relevant airlines and low-cost flights (30 minutes from Braga by highway, far out 50 km). The airport is easily accessible via the A3, via the Porto Underground and CP trains, or via the shuttle service provided by GetBus.

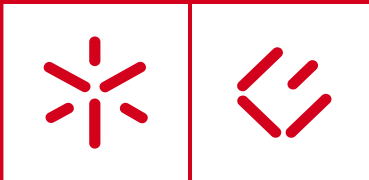

The Vigo Airport is headquartered about 100 km away, and it provides for bus trips directly connecting these two cities daily.

At the level of Braga Public Transport System, the whole municipality hubs the Urban Transport of Braga (TUB).
