

Master-Seminar Summer Semester 2023

Gender Difference in Labor Markets

Despite progress in recent decades, labor market outcomes differ by gender: women have on average lower wages and they are less represented in top management and leadership, for example. In this seminar, we will examine potential explanations for and policies aiming at reducing gender differences in labor markets.

How to apply:

- Name of seminar: Aktuelle Fragen der Personal- und Organisationsökonomik
- The application process runs via wuecampus (<https://wuecampus2.uni-wuerzburg.de/moodle/enrol/index.php?id=57619&lang=en>).
- Deadline: 31st December, 2022

Time Schedule:

- Tuesday, April 25th, 2023: Kick-off meeting and topic assignment
- June 2023: hand in of seminar paper and presentation of seminar paper in the block seminar (exact date and room to be announced)

The number of participants is limited to 12 students.

The grade of the seminar comprises a mark for the seminar paper and a mark for the block seminar (presentation of your paper, presented comments to another paper, and discussion)

The seminar will be held in English. It will be supervised by Prof. Jan Sauermann (Institute for Evaluation of Labour Market and Education Policy (IFAU), Uppsala, Sweden) and Prof. Zwick.