Choosing your modules

If you are joining us from one of our Erasmus Partner institutions, please contact your home study abroad office and ask them to provide you with a Learning Agreement for you to fill in.

If you are joining us from one of our International Partners, or are a direct enrol student, please fill in the ‘Global Opportunities Learning Agreement’ Form included in this preparation pack.

Your Learning Agreement
It is important to discuss your Learning Agreement with your Academic Coordinator at your home university and your Departmental Coordinator here at Aberystwyth University.

Once you have completed your Learning Agreement, and it has been signed by yourself and your home coordinator, please return it to global@aber.ac.uk, and we will then arrange for it be signed by your Departmental Coordinator here in Aberystwyth.

The deadlines to submit this document to the Global Opportunities Team are:

- Semester 1/Full Academic Year: 31st July
- Semester 2: 30th November
Choosing the right modules for your study scheme

If you have come to study on a specific study abroad programme, there might be specific modules or subjects that your home university would like you to take.

It is important that you speak to your Academic Coordinator at your home university to identify any specific modules or subjects that they would like you to take.

Once you have discussed this with your Academic Coordinator at your home university, please contact your Departmental Coordinator here at Aberystwyth University for advice on what modules you should choose.

Departmental Coordinator’s can offer advice and support on what modules are available to you, their content, and can even suggest modules that you might want to take based on your interests.

You can find a full list of Departmental Coordinators on page 4 of this guide.

Pre-requisites

You may find that some modules require a pre-requisite. Whilst this does not necessarily mean that module is not available to you, it is important that you make sure that you have the required previous knowledge or experience to take that module.

If you are not sure if you have met a pre-requisite of a particular module, please feel free to contact your Departmental Coordinator at Aberystwyth University who will be happy to talk things through with you.

Now you are ready to choose your modules!

You can find a full list of modules by Department by clicking the links below:

- Current Modules by Department
- Future Modules by Department

It is important that you choose modules that are taught in the correct Academic Year (either current, or future), and in the right Semester (either Semester 1, or Semester 2).
Identifying module codes and credits

Aberystwyth University students are required to register for 120 Aberystwyth University (AU) credits per academic year and 60 per semester. This is equivalent to 60 ECTS per year and 30 ECTS per semester.

Ultimately, it is the responsibility of your home university to determine how many credits are appropriate for conversion purposes, but we usually advise students to select 60 AU credits per semester.

A modules credit value is indicated in the last two digits of the module code (please see diagram to the right). Modules that are listed as having ‘00’ credits are run over both semesters, so would not be available for students planning to study in Aberystwyth for a single semester only.

Please note that whilst it is possible to select modules from more than one department, this does increase the likelihood of timetable clashes, as does selecting modules totalling over 60 credits (per semester).

Breaking down module codes:
Glacial Processes and Landforms

1. Subject code
2. Course level
   - First Year (Part 1)
   - Second Year (Part 2)
   - Third Year (Part 2)
3. Course identifier
4. Credit value: 10 AU credits = 5 ECTS
